A memorandum submitted to the senate committee at its request by Admiral Billard disclosed that since 1924, the guard admits it has killed eight persons and wounded two others while enforcing the law. It was not stated whether all were rum smugglers, but that was the inference given. Three were killed when they refused "to heave to" when ordered to by coast guard boats.

Billard's Version of Case.

Responding to questions from Sena tor Copeland, Senator Johnson [Rep., Cal.], and Chairman Jones [Rep., Wash], Admiral Billard outlined the circumstances surrounding the Hanson shooting. He told how the coast guard had decided to place men on shore at Rochester, N. #### PROTEST OUSTING U.S. JUDGE TIES OF RACKETEERS

The summary dismissal of Special Assistant State's Attorney Walter G. Walker, foe of racketeers and bombers, brought many protests yesterday from employers' organizations. Earl Macoy, president, and G. L. Hostetter, secretary of the Employers' association; were among those who made formal protest to State's Attorney Crowe for his action in severing Walker from the pay roll. The prosecutor had said he dismissed Walker because of lazir of funds.

Trades people of all descriptions looked to your office through him (Walker) for protection against predatory schemes," Mr. Macoy wrote to Mr. Crowe. "This is attested by the fact that 98 schemes of this general character have been presented to him for investigation and prosecution. Moreover, 29 persons are under indictment and awaiting trial on evidence compiled and presented by him.

We do not believe any one this time will dare say that Mr. Eicke bombed himself. We do not believe that any one will be disposed to say that Mr. Newman is the victim of hallucinations. There can be no slightest doubt that in the attempt to free a criminal, caught in the act of robbery with a gun, a witness was put in fear of his life and a juror similarly threatened. When that juror had shown the quality of his courage, an attempt was made to destroy his house and perhaps to murder his wife and children.

The men who placed the bomb are realists. They do not waste their dynamite. The bomb was intended as a punishment and a warning. It told Mr. Eicke what he might expect if he persisted in his exposure of McLaughlin and his friends. It was a plain intimation to Eicke that he was dealing with desperate men who would stop at nothing.

Public opinion in Chicago has been on the side of Mr. Loesch of the crime commission and Mr. Latham of the bar association in their efforts to disrupt the alliance of criminals and office holders, particularly as it has manifested itself in the administration of justice in Cook county. CHICAGO'S TREATY TREE. [Rock Island, Ill., Argus.]

At the intersection of Rogers, Caldwell and Kilourn avenues in Chicago stands a sturdy old elm tree which by the treaty of 1816, made with the indians, became the marker for the northern limits of the Fort Dearborn reservation. After 19 years the red men under Chief Sauganash met with the white residents under the spreading branches of the e'm and the Indians there decided to make their modus, receiving government payments.

Greater Chicago, therefore, was born at this spo but the old tree will be cut down, due to the fact that Caldwell avenue is to be paved, unless lovers of the historical interfere and prevent this act of

[Copyright: 1928; By the Chicago Tribune.] THE ANTI-MINDED.

N writing about the anti-mind, which I do from time to time, I have often referred to the disposition of persons of this mental type to take up with a multitude of vagaries. Seldom does an "anti" limit himself to one windmill. Most of them have three or four, while many are against all windmills, of what-ever sort, wheresoever located. I have sometimes wondered whether Alfred Russell Wallace had an anti mind,

It will be remembered that Wallace was a great collector of rare specimens, paricularly in South America and around the Indian ocean, that he was born about fifteen years later than Darwin, and lived until 1913. He was a great naturalist. He put out a book on the Darwinian theories while Darwin was writing his book. In other words, working along the same lines, in the same the world and using the same material, he quite independently reached the same conclusions Darwin did. Darwin took twenty years to mature his research before he wrote. Wallace took but a fraction of that time.

He is credited by every one, including Darwin, with having been a co-discoverer with Darwin and also with having been one of the world's greatest natural ists. However, he was not regarded as being well poised. In Ward's "Charles Darwin" seven reasons are given for what Ward calls They are: 1. He accepted phrenology and held to his faith all his life.

2. He accepted Robert Owen's philosophy of human nature.

3. He believed that almanac makers

4. He held that he had a cure for the fills which grow out of the present system of holding lands. 5. He accepted Williams' theory which taught that the sun maintained its heat by means of friction between it and the space atmosphere.

6. He considered Darwin's "pangenesis sublime in its simplicity; satisfying in the extreme; the most wonderful thing Darwin has given us." 7. He argued against vaccination.

Superficially, this looks like evidence enough to suggest that Wallace was anti-minded. But it will be noticed in six of the seven points on which he was at variance with science then and now he accepted something which they rejected, and only one did he reject. For none of these did he contend. He was not a fighter, as Huxley was. He was credu-lous minded. Though one of the great-est naturalists the world has known his mind was not efficient in weighing evicommon with those who are anti-minded would not be correct to classify him as one of the anti-minded.

Chicago, May 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My house is located across the street from a public baseball dia-mond and is so situated that a wild throw over first base sometimes goes through my basement windows. I have had three windows broken in the last season and have paid the damage myself in each case. However I am getting tired of this and would like to know who shoulders the responsibility in a case like this. Are the players liable or is it the Lincoln park board? J. S. #### FEED BOX DOPE:

When we arrived this morning it was raining and had rained all night. The weather was not such as to suggest a trip to Churchill Downs, but the time before the big race is so short we thought we quick to go right out and talk with the horses for the benefit of friends in Chicago, some of whom have come to rely upon these interviews in the placing of their wagers.

Naturally our first call would have been on

We don't think he ever saw it, and the first time we see Reigh we'll ask him, ecause at heart we're fond of this chestnut chap But, anyway, we decided to see Toro, considered best of those from the east. This colt, as you remember, ran second to Victorian in the Preakness and is owned by E. B. McLean, Washington and Cincinnati publisher.

Approaching his quarters, situated on the back stretch, at about the half mile pole, we saw Toro seated in the living room attired in a rather gaudy. lounging robe. He evidently had breakfasted, for he was clean shaven and was glancing through the morning papers. We doubted whether he would remember us from Lincoln Fields last summer and naturally felt rather gratified when he said cordially, "Well, if here isn't old Wake-Line himself. I was wondering if you wouldn't escape from your captivity after all." Then he added that train and wondered if he couldn't do "something for us, although he was not touching it himself until after the Derby. He could and did, so we

"I think he's in condition. Make no mistake about that—in condition so far as workouts can bring condition. But he has started only once this season, remember that. Now, Harve, I went through that Preakness and it was a tough race. I was a better colt than Victorian that day. He had clear salling all the way, while I had to pick my way through the back field to get up. Our stable thought we won, but the judges gave Victorian that day is the verdict by a nose, only a nose, Harve. This news was received here at 7.05 a. m. today in radio dispatches from the airship. Further explanation was made that the most favorable time for exploration had passed with the first half of May, and that conditions now are entirely unsuited to the proposed terrestrial explorations.

At 7 o'clock tonight the Italia reported that it was approximately 500 miles southeast of Spitzbergen. Gen. Nobile said he would attempt to fly around South Cape, the southernmost point of Spitzbergen, and thence follow the west coast to Kings Bay. If able to continue to Kings Bay he hopes to arrive by 8 a. m., Green-wich time.

We don't fool with "long-profit" tires

They are costly alike to user and dealer

There are several reasons why we say— "Life is too short to fool with 'long-profit'

First, you get gloriously cheated; you don't get anyways near what you are entitled to.

Second, the dealer who sold you those "long-profit" tires (if he only knew it) is digging his own business grave. Sooner or later Dun and Bradstreet will report him as "out of business."

Don't think that we have any axes to grind; or that we are posing as moralists.

This is an advertisement—not a sermon. It is a simple, plain statement of why our ears cease to function when some traveling tire salesman begins painting a lurid word-picture of "extra-profit for you, Mr. Dealer." We are looking for profit, all right, but not in that form.

It is a tire made by a concern of not much experience—hence it has little chance indeed of giving the user a run for his money.

It's a tire with no reputation, little reputation, or a poor reputation. Hard to sell. Needs a strong boost from the dealer every time.

It is a tire on which the dealer can make an extra profit of 5, 10, 15 or 20%. In other words, it is what dealers call a "longprofit" tire.

Such a tire can be sold to the dealer only by offering extra profit to him.

And he, in turn, by extra effort and by personal endorsement, sells it to the user.

But, in the end, both user and dealer pay a heavy penalty—short mileage to the former; lost customer for the latter.

Even if we were wholly selfish, we would continue to sell dependable tires at a legiti-mate, reasonable profit per tire. It would be business folly to do otherwise.

Often 3,000 Miles Extra

Sometimes people say, "There isn't much difference in tires nowadays."

True, there are several good tires on the market; but, as in all other things, there must be one best—just one—and only one. It is Goodyear.

Goodyear is not only the best tire, the most serviceable—it is very much the best.

Three thousand extra miles—3,000 more miles than the buyer expects. That's an ordinary occurrence.

The only reason everybody hasn't found this out is that many people do not accurately check their tire mileage. And some, of course, have yet to try Goodyears.

Goodyear Superiority Conceded

Goodyear superiority is no longer a matter of opinion. Twenty-five years have proved it. When a man buys a new car, the chances are 30 in 100 it will have Goodyear Tires. Yet there over 100 brands of tires on the

And every year the tire dealers of this country sell more Goodyears than any other. That's been true for ten years. And each year the preference for Goodyears becomes greater.

Why do people prefer Goodyears? Because they are pretty? Because they add social distinction?

No! Because of their unmatchable service. Because on any car, on any road, in any weather, Goodyears give measurably more miles of service; because of their greater safety and dependability.

Yet, with all Goodyears' superiority, they are not high priced. Their cost is reasonable.

lection of athletes who are both young and old. The decision, however, was not achieved without a ninth round outburst that brought Ted Lyons hurrying to the relief of Tommy Thomas with the tying run on second base and only one out.

What put the Sox out in front so far that they were able to avoid being overtaken by their opponents, was a four run rally in the seventh, at which time the Macks were leading with three runs, and another splurge in the eighth that pushed a couple in the winning in the eighth that pushed a couple in the winning in the pinches has been the greatest single factor in the accomplishment of the Cubs' streak.

Thomas regained his bearings until the the Sox star going bloosy. He walked

Lyons dashed into the breach to conclude the show.

Herr Hauser from Milwaukee slapped the ball over the wall in right center. Then Cochrane, who always displays envy over anything Hauser may do, took a real swing and missed clearing the right field barrier by inches. He made three bases on the blow and went home on Miller's sacrifice fly.

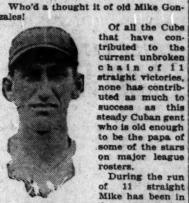

Then Came Lucky Seventh.

Then Came Lucky Seventh.

Prior to the splendid outbreak of the Sox in the seventh they had not been able to transact much business with Orwoll. Only four widely separated hits were reconded against him in six rounds. Then Kamm led off in the seventh with a single. Clancy scored him with a triple and Bud tallied on Berg's sacrifice fly. Thomas renewed the rally with a single, but Mostil forced him. Cissell added a single and tralled Mostil over the plate when Hunnefield exploded a double to left center.

$3,700,000 Cooper River Bridge, Incorporated

First (Closed) Mortgage 6% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Due May 1, 1958

CONTINENTAL NATIONAL BANK AND TRUST COMPANY OF CHICAGO, TRUSTEE R. G. RHETT, CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA, CO-TRUSTEE

H. M. BYLLESBY AND COMPANY, CHICAGO, FISCAL AGENT

Mr. John P. Grace, President of the Company, summarizes his letter dated May 14, 1928, as follows:

General Cooper River Bridge, Incorporated, will construct, own and operate a toll bridge across the Cooper River, under a 35-year franchise embracing, exclusively, a distance of twenty miles on either side of the bridge location, granted by the Legislature of the State of South Carolina, from a point known as Lee Street, in the City of Charleston, South Carolina, to a point opposite thereto near Mount Pleasant. Charleston, with a population of approximately 85,000, is located on the southern end of a long, narrow peninsula separated from the mainland by the Cooper River on the east and by the Ashley River on the west. The Cooper River Bridge will afford a safe and rapid means of vehicular communication between Charleston and the mainland to the east of it.

Territory According to the good roads program of the Highway Commission of South Carolina, a complete system of hard surface highways, connecting Charleston with all points in the state, will be completed within the next two years. It is estimated be completed within the next two years. It is estimated that by January, 1929, the state will have completed the hard surface highway passing through Charleston as part of the most direct route from Montreal, Canada, to Key West, Florida. The Cooper River Bridge will form the connecting link between these converging highway systems, and what is designated as Route 40 will be a coastal highway connecting Key West on the south, through Charleston via the Cooper River Bridge, with Georgetown, S. C., Wilmington, N. C., Norfolk, Va., and all points north. This highway will be approximately 100 miles shorter than any other highway between New York City and Florida.

Property The bridge will be of steel cantilever type, built on reinforced concrete piers, and will have a concrete paved roadway 20 feet in the clear between curbs to accommodate amply two lines of traffic. With approaches, the entire length of the bridge will be approximately 14,000 feet. Messrs. Waddell & Hardesty, Consulting Engineers, specializing in bridge engineering, have prepared the plans for the bridge, which have been approved by the U. S. Chief of Engineers and the Chief Engineer of the State Highway Commission of South Carolina. The Company has contracted with The Foundation Company, McClintic-Marshall Company, Virginia Bridge and Iron Company and C. E. Hillyer for construction of the bridge. All these companies have long been indentified with successful bridge construction work.

Capitalization After giving effect to present financing, capitalization of Cooper River Bridge, Incorporated, will be as follows:

The proceeds from the sale of these Bonds and junior securities will be deposited with H. M. Byllesby and Company, Chicago, Fiscal Agent, to be disbursed under the disbursement agreement described in the mortgage securing this issue. The mortgage will provide for the insurance of the bridge, in adequate amounts, against damage by fire, lightning, flood, tornado, earthquake, collapse, explosion, riot, malicious action and other insurable hazards. Surety bonds and/or satisfactory assurances have been furnished, guaranteeing the completion of the structure free and clear of liens and encumbrances, in accordance with terms of contracts.

There is a city within the City of New York

-a city without slums

the Herald Tribune every morning.

That means a tremendous city—a city of more homes than Detroit with 218,973 families or Cleveland with 182,692 families or St. Louis with 190,640.

To the advertiser this offers an opportunity to tell a story without wasting ammunition on the poorer sections—to reach the substantial intelligent families with the means to buy what they want.

How can you be sure that these 300,000 Herald Tribune families are the most desirable, from the advertiser's viewpoint, in the New York market? Well, here are some facts:

Less than 1 per cent of New York City families live in the Park Avenue Section where the average family buying power is $7,875. Yet this section has 26 per cent Herald Tribune coverage.

Nearly 7 per cent of New York City families live on the Lower East Side where the average family buying power is $1,599. But the Herald Tribune has only 1 per, cent coverage in that section.

There is only one telephone to every 11 families on the Lower East Side of New York. In the districts where the Herald Tribune is strongest every family has a telephone.

Straight up and down the economic scale of New York—the better the section, the stronger is the Herald Tribune's hold.

The paper itself is the reason. It is written and edited for intelligent people. It presents a sensible, human treatment of all the news. Such men as Claire Briggs, Mark Sullivan, Grantland Rice, J. N. "Ding" Darling and W. O. McGeehan help to make it what it is. Its foreign news is comprehensive, much of it is exclusive, all of it is written by trained Americans resident in the world's news centers.

Intelligent, friendly and prosperous, this huge Herald Tribune sudience waits for your story.

Norwegians Observe Independence Day

Yesterday was a red letter day for Chicago's citizens of Norwegian de-scent. It not only marked the 114th anniversary of the independence of the homeland, but it also was the centennial of Henrik Ibsen, the great Norwegian dramatist. School children donned the folk costumes of Norway and marched in a parade at noon down and marched in a parade at noon down North avenue from Damen avenue to Humboldt park. The afternoon was spent in contests, speeches, folk songs and darices, under the auspices of the Norwegian National league. The Singham Delia Kappa Women's Church federation Mandel known plays were staged. The Sing-ers' league of several hundred voices, exhibits of folk dances and an address by J. A. O. Correct Their Table Manners Before the Meal, If Possible sults with children, just as there ere kinds and kinds of children, and causes and causes for what they do resterday's article was about making the atmosphere of mealtimes an agreeable one, though some children must learn to eat and others must learn how to eat. Naturally, if these things have to be accomplished, the pleasantness depends somewhat upon whether or not we can see them being accomplished.

The matter of how to overcome the very common difficulty of getting a child to eat when he doesn't want to is a story in itself—in fact, a book in itself. The matter of manners is not so deep a subject, so there is room here for a few suppositions.

so deep a subject, so there is room here for a few suggestions.

Generally speaking I think the child, particularly the boy, whose appetite is an indifferent one is apt to have better table manners than the child with a keen appetite. The latter is inclined to eat with gusto, as you might say, and speed, and neither one of these tends toward especially careful table manners. Also, generally speaking, I think girls take to table manners more easily than boys.

When children are old enough, and their manners have been causing trouble, it is a good plan to take them quietly aside immediately before going to the table, and remind them that you want them to do the very best they can at that particular meal.

Sometimes it is a good plan if there has been a great backeliding or very slow learning, to take up one point at a time. Say to them, "Now for all this week, try to keep your elbow off the table—fust remember that one thing." Then the next week, add to that the taking of smaller mouthfuls. It's not humanty possible to expect It's not humanty possible to expect ever to correct a child at the table But reduce it to a minimum and then do it in as quiet and friendly a way as messible; by reminding, not by scolding or lecturing. cheir food.

In the first place, their interest—or their morale—in such things will be stimulated by the kind of service they have. Engaging things can be bought so inexpensively. If the dishes with pletures on seem an extravagance, all sorts of charming colored plates and bowls and cups can be bought for 10 cents. Little bird or frog or other whimal salt shakers are a delight, and doilies and napkins need not be expensive to be attractive.

Their plate should be of the right size and shape, their meat cut small, their bread buttered and cut in strips. Frequently a very little boy or girl will tire of the mechanics of feeding himself or herself, and grow careless. I think it is no more than human then, to feed him the last of the meal yourself. sons when high quality fruits, particularly peaches, will bring a good price. One of the best ways to improve the quality of peaches is to thin them. Thinning from one-third to one-half the peaches that may be left on a normal tree after bad weather, diseases, and insects have taken their toll is recommended by horticulturists.

Marsh of the agricultural college at Urbana advises thinning peaches the last week in May and during June. An eight year old peach tree, he says, can carry thirty to forty thousand fruit buds. Frost and egid weather in the spring, followed by attacks of insects and diseases, thin down the prospective crop until twelve to sixteen hundred peaches to the tree are all that are picked at harvest. This, Marsh figures, may mean a yield of four and a half to five bushels a tree. He explains, however, that if the grower pulled off from 400 to 300 peaches from each tree and left only 300 to 900 he still would be able to pick four and a half to five bushels from each tree, provided the thinning is properly done. The secret of thinning is that it gives the tree a chance to produce larger and better peaches. On young trees thin peaches so that the fruits will be from four to five inches apart and from eight to ten inches apart on old trees.
